

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A deterioration diagnosis method, wherein the amount of weight loss of a metallic material due to corrosion in atmospheric air for the exposure days is formulated as a function for environmental assessment points which represents a level of a harmfulness of the atmospheric conditions; and the life span of the metallic material is diagnosed based on the corrosion loss calculated from the function.